Description

According to Carmen, a fourth-grader, her school's librarian won't tell students anything! Fortunately, her classmate Robert doesn't believe Carmen. When he asks Mrs. Skorupski question after question, she leads Robert to the tools he needs to find the answers, and he becomes a Library Success Story. The book's engaging text and fun illustrations will have your students clamoring to become Library Success Stories, too.

Insightful reviews

Megan: Librarians and teachers may find this useful in teaching students to find information for themselves. Students may find this to be a bit preachy.

Cynthia: Love this book. Just ended our 1st grade research project with it and they loved that they knew their librarian teaches them how to find things, not tell them where things are. :)

Denee: Great book! As an elementary school librarian, I loved the fun and quirkiness of Mrs. Skorupski and how she "didn't" help the students. Fun.

Heather Manning: This booklet could make an excellent addition to the educational guide for any college or public librarian, and likewise any AnyQuestions operator.! details literacy rulz!!

Ruth Ann: this can be a life like fiction tale a few tuition Librarian who does not simply provide scholars answers, yet quite she teaches them to exploit the library and its assets so scholars can independently solution their very own questions. The librarian is a character. She wears tarantula rings and makes use of humorous expressions like "oily doily". Will young children locate her humorous and revel in the tale or will they simply imagine the booklet is a "gimmick"? i'm making a bet that plenty of librarians will love Mrs. Skorupski yet i feel she's going to flip off many fourth and 5th graders, in particular boys. Tread carefully.

Laurie: institution Library magazine (February 1, 2007)Gr 2-5-Liberty simple institution has a state of the art library media middle with a librarian who, allegedly, will not inform the scholars anything. at the very least that is the grim record that new pupil Robert gets from his classmate Carmen. while he meets Mrs. Skorupski-who wears tarantula earrings, rhinestone glasses, a vibrant red-and-gold shirt, and crimson pants-he discovers that she isn't relatively as close-lipped as he'd been resulted in believe. whereas it really is precise that she will not position a booklet at once in his hand or locate him an internet site, she patiently teaches him find out how to seek a web catalog and the way to entry and choose applicable details by means of himself. In different words, she's an ideal institution librarian. Mrs. Skorupski permits Robert and his classmates to find print and nonprint materials, take notes, retain music of sources, and display their studying in a multimedia product. This fun tale with bright, zippy illustrations can be utilized to release learn units. The accompanying "library lessons" pamphlet has necessary forms, a self-assessment rubric, and extra info on multimedia codecs together with claymation films, podcasts, television advertisements, and PowerPoint slide shows.-Gloria Koster, West School, New Canaan, CT Copyright 2007 Reed company Information.
