Description

Zack's father is a paleontologist so Zack knows dinosaurs. He never expected to hatch one, have it imprint on him, and then meet its terrible ferocious mother in all her gruesome glory. "Zack's lungs filled with the wet, stinking graveyard breath of the raptor. Hot, yellow froth drooled down onto him from the spray of ginzu fangs that jutted from the raptor's gums ..". Paul Zindel takes us on a thrill ride into the bowels of the mountains in Utah as Zack and his friend, a Native American young woman named Uta, search for the hatchling and a herd of dinosaurs. They encounter unimaginable creatures and their nightmare trip into the dark regions under the mountains culminates in an encounter with nature's proof that terrible lizards do exist.

Insightful reviews

Darin king of spiders: never to take something from the wild, or something bad will happen.

Timothy: I read this in sixth grade. It was awesome and it blew my mind, ever since then I had wanted to eat a cooked grub.

Simply to say this book was hard core for someone my age, it had all the gross-out and gore that a good middle school novel should have, and then some, I'm keeping this review short because I read it 7-8 years ago and remember bit, but it was good enough that the part I remember are VERY vivid. It wasn't perfect... but it was a lot of fun.

Thomas Macgregor: Like a lot of people I read this book a long time ago. I can't remember if it was my first book or not, but I know this was the book that made me realize books are amazing.

Jenee: at the comparable suggestion as Loch. A booklet for a more youthful audience. Kinda gross at a few elements yet a very exciting story.

Liz Perdue: I didn't like this book, yet a lot of my sixth grade boys did.....short and graphically gory. So it truly is a price to me used to be that lots of my scholars desired to learn it.

Jessie: Paul Zindel has written many "Thriller" books for YA. scholars love examining Raptor, Loch, Rats, and others. they're gory and speedy reads.
